

We investigate the problem of shape formation with robots on tiles in which a collection of robots has to rearrange a set of movable tiles to form a desired shape. In this preliminary work we consider the case of a single robot operating on an arbitrary number of tiles and present first results towards the formation of simple shapes.